POSTGRADUATE DIPLOMA IN MONITORING AND EVALUATION (PGDME)

Programme Description

This course recognizes the longevity of the practices of monitoring and evaluation which have trekked the long journey of human civilization and are claimed to be as old as man himself as well as the growing importance attached to this field both as a practice and academic study. The course recognizes that the academic study of the field of monitoring and evaluation has gained immense interest due to the mismatch between demand and supply of M and E practitioners and Professionals. Government of Uganda designed the national monitoring and Evaluation policy of the country and it is anticipated that each Ministry, Department and Agency (MDA) will have a fully-fledged monitoring and evaluation unit. While some MDAs have moved towards this direction, others are yet to operationalize this partially due to lack of well-trained experts in the field at graduate level.

The overall goal of the Master of Monitoring and Evaluation Program is to strengthen the relevance, efficiency, effectiveness, impact and sustainability of interventions by governments, civil society and non-government organizations as well as development partners in Sub-Saharan Africa through the development and enhancement of capacity for evaluation. The program broadly aims to impart knowledge, skills and competencies to students interested in building a career in monitoring and evaluation. Specifically, the program is intended to: -

- i. Impart up-to date knowledge, skills and competencies on evaluation within diverse contexts
- ii. Produce evaluation experts with management skills and competencies in making critical decisions that affect delivery of public services at all levels of society
- iii. Produce graduates who can design, conduct and manage efficient and effective evaluations

Overview

The PGDME programme will run on a modular programme designed to be completed within 1 year. A module will include 5 weeks of face to face interaction with facilitators of the courses. The student will be given prepared materials including online resources to continue with learning outside campus. The programme consists of Course works & Examinations and all courses are compulsory to all students. Students who undertake and pass this programme and wish to upgrade to a Masters degree in Monitoring and Evaluation will only do dissertation and related methodology and compulsory second year courses.
